Peace through Education

Mission:

1. Identify the components which support schools
2. Create and share a strategy for establishing and maintaining successful schools
3. Exemplify working International school resources financial, professional and community based.

Peace through Education is the theme of the Pearl Rotary Club-Portland Rotaract symposium planned for Saturday, Feb. 4, 2012, at Portland State University's Smith Memorial Hall. The event features many examples of how Oregon leadership and organizations have contributed to peace and education in schools around the world.

This gathering of interested professionals and students was inspired by the work of Portland leaders whose work continues to help prepare students for a peaceful, productive life. Also stories from the field of community foundations, microcredit, peace actions and global action will be illustrated by 21 speakers and two panels. The luncheon keynote speaker is Julie Mancini, director of Mercy Corps Action Center local and global involvement.

Portland Pearl Rotary President Lou Radja, a native of the Democratic Republic of Congo, will open the conference at 9 a.m., speaking on "The Importance of Schools Today Internationally."

Rotarians' efforts at building peace were supported Nov. 2 when the City of Portland passed a resolution, citing Rotary International's "Respect for cultural diversity and the life and dignity of every person, without discrimination of prejudice; Resolution of conflict within local and global communities; and Reconciliation of differences in pursuit of harmony."

Also, read Mayor Sam Adams, "the Rotary Peace Committee of Portland and the City of Portland join together to promote peace, understanding and goodwill between our residents in in communities around the world."

Sharing Rotary's peace-building seminar with Adams and the city council was Pearl Rotarian Roger Meyer. He was joined in the council chambers by fellow Rotarians Radja and Anne O'Neill (Pearl club) and Al Jubitz, Portland Rotary.

The symposium is open to the public. Student admission is $10 and all others $25, which includes the luncheon, the symposium and the conference syllabus containing resources and speaker summaries. Surrounding the PSU peace-building meeting will be resource tables from the World Affairs Council, Rotaract, Rotary Foundation and Mercy Corps as well as other inspiring groups.
